“My photograph ‘Gordian Knot’ happened organically: a busy clinic day and a stethoscope thrown onto my desk. A glance at its twisted knot of tubing reminded me how difficult it can be for patients, caregivers, and healthcare workers alike to navigate, be cared for and work in the American healthcare system.” —Elisabeth Preston-Hsu

Elisabeth Preston-Hsu is a Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation physician in clinical practice in Atlanta, Georgia. She has had work appear in Glassworks Magazine, Hektoen International and received an Honorable Mention in Glimmer Train's Short Story Awards for New Writers in March/April 2019.
