Little Isolated Bird

By Brent R. Carr

Brent Carr is a physician/ psychiatrist on faculty at the University of Florida, College of Medicine. Artist and philosopher, he is an advocate of teaching and encouragement of student involvement in the arts and humanities. He encourages medical students to deepen their understanding of the art of medicine to foster a deeper empathy and rapport with their patients, and that the practice of medicine becomes richer through exploration and a willful consideration of the human condition. He notes: “This photograph taken in May was captured on an early morning hike in Florida wetlands on a path that is often well-trodden, yet now eerily quiet from restrictions on public gatherings during the pandemic.”
